

THE CELEBRATED, AWARD-WINNING BIOGRAPHY OF MICHEL DE MONTAIGNE — A PERFECT GIFT FOR

DADS AND GRADS

WINNER OF THE 2010 NATIONAL
BOOK CRITICS
CIRCLE AWARD

"How to Live
will delight and illuminate."
—The Independent

"Serious, engaging, and so infectiously in love with its subject that I found myself racing to finish so I could start rereading the Essays themselves
...It is hard to imagine a better introduction—or reintroduction—to Montaigne." —Lorin Stein, Harper's

Nick Hornby
called it the
"BEST BOOK OF 2010"

"The most enjoyable introduction to Montaigne in the English language."
—Times Literary Supplement

"A biography [in] the form of a delightful conversation across the centuries."
—The New York Times

"CHARMING"
—The New Yorker

"Suavely entertaining
...Montaigne is, with Walt Whitman, among the most congenial of literary giants, inclined to shrug over the inevitability of human failings and the last man to accuse anyone of self-absorption. His great subject, after all, was himself."
—Laura Miller, Salon

"Extraordinary...
A miracle of complex,
revelatory organization,
for as Bakewell moves along she provides a brilliant demonstration of the alchemy of historical viewpoint."
—Boston Globe

"Sarah Bakewell
is a wry and intelligent guide."
—The Daily Beast
